The Journal of Research Initiatives is inviting submission of conceptual research manuscripts. Conceptual papers are thought provoking papers that challenge current thinking and practice and propose new approaches and models for application. If you have a conceptual research article for consideration, please visit JRI website at: <http://digitalcommons.uncfsu.edu/jri/>. You will find submission guidelines and related materials.

The Journal of Research Initiatives encourages the submission of articles which are broadly conceptual with the goal of building theory and /or reviewing and evaluating the body of research in a substantive and important area. The goals of these papers should be to: (a) improve conceptual clarity, (b) provide a holistic review of the current research, and (c) propose new opportunities, ideas, and theories.

Conceptual manuscripts provide readers with new and innovative perspectives on timely and relevant topics for public and higher education educators. This manuscript category includes both philosophical and conceptual works and includes comprehensive literature reviews. Support for the ideas must be provided through related literature, and implications for education research and practice must be addressed. Conceptual manuscripts should not exceed 15 pages, not including references.

If you are interested in submitting a conceptual research manuscript that has not been previously published, please send your manuscript via the online submission system: <http://digitalcommons.uncfsu.edu/jri/>. Click on the journal link to review guidelines for submitting online manuscripts. Feel free to contact me for additional information.
